Today's Oil Headlines

Oil prices fell sharply on Monday: Brent closed at $92.57 a barrel, down 5.85% on the day, and US WTI closed at $86.85, down 4.38%, briefly dipping below $85 during the session. The trigger was hope that the US–Iran standoff is easing — Trump said fresh strikes on Iran are unlikely as long as talks make progress, and the market began unwinding the "risk premium" it had priced in for war. But no deal is close: Secretary of State Marco Rubio said diplomacy has produced "no fruitful results" so far and called Iran's conditions unrealistic. Meanwhile, Middle East exports are recovering, with Saudi output up nearly a million barrels a day in October. Three big reports land this week: the US Energy Information Administration's Short-Term Energy Outlook (Tuesday), OPEC's Monthly Oil Market Report (Wednesday), and the International Energy Agency's Oil Market Report (Friday).

The News, Item by Item

1. Oil plunged nearly 6% on Monday; WTI briefly fell below $85. Brent closed at $92.57 a barrel, down $5.75 (-5.85%), after an intraday low of $90.56; WTI closed at $86.85, down $3.98 (-4.38%), after an intraday low of $85.02, its lowest since August. The market sees the war risk premium unwinding fast. Source: https://www.dtnpf.com/agriculture/web/ag/news/world-policy/article/2026/11/09/wti-tests-85-u-s-iran-de-escalation

2. Trump met Qatar's prime minister at the White House on Monday to discuss a ceasefire and nuclear talks. Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Sheikh Mohammed bin Abdulrahman Al Thani, the key mediator between the US and Iran, met Trump and Vice President JD Vance. In a CNN interview on November 8, Trump said fresh strikes on Iran were "highly unlikely" if negotiations made progress. Source: https://www.tbsnews.net/world/

3. Rubio: no breakthrough in talks; Iran's conditions are unrealistic. US Secretary of State Marco Rubio said on November 8 that diplomacy with Iran "has not been fruitful" so far and that Tehran's demands are too high; he did not declare the talks dead, but said no breakthrough is in sight. Iran insists its ceasefire conditions must be met before nuclear issues can be discussed. Source: https://el7.ai/en/news/2026-11-09-rubio-rules-out-iran-breakthrough-citing-outrageous-demands

4. Iran has proposed a "seven-day roadmap" and awaits the US response. Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi said Iran has submitted a seven-day roadmap to Washington via Qatar: once the US accepts, first steps would take four to five days, the Strait of Hormuz would reopen on day six, and nuclear talks would start on day seven. Tehran says the offer is on the table and "the choice now rests with the United States"; The Wall Street Journal reported that Trump has rejected the proposal. 5. Saudi output surged in October; OPEC output hit an 8-month high. Saudi crude production rose by 970,000 barrels a day to 9.2 million in October, recovering further from a 36-year low in August; total OPEC crude output rose by 930,000 barrels a day to 22.8 million. Combined exports from Saudi Arabia, the UAE, Iraq and Kuwait climbed 10% to 15.53 million barrels a day in October, roughly back to levels seen at the start of the year. 6. Aramco cut December prices for Asia by less than expected. Saudi Aramco last Thursday cut its official selling price for December crude to Asian buyers by $2 a barrel, less than the $5 decrease the market had expected. The news gave oil prices slight support, but not enough to stop Monday's slide. 7. Ukrainian strikes hit Russian refining hard; processing fell to a 24-year low. Ukraine has attacked six of Russia's ten largest oil-processing plants in recent months; according to EA Analytics, Russian crude-processing rates averaged 3.51 million barrels a day in July, the lowest in 24 years, and recovered only slightly to 3.98 million in September as damaged refineries struggle to come back online. 8. Three big reports this week will set the tone for the oil market. The US Energy Information Administration's Short-Term Energy Outlook comes out Tuesday, OPEC's Monthly Oil Market Report on Wednesday, and the International Energy Agency's Oil Market Report on Friday; US October CPI and weekly inventory data are also due. Traders are waiting on these reports to judge where supply and demand are heading. Source: https://www.dtnpf.com/agriculture/web/ag/news/world-policy/article/2026/11/09/wti-tests-85-u-s-iran-de-escalation
